2022 AIASC DESIGN & CHAPTER AWARDS

SUMMARY

INTENT
AIASC has a long tradition of recognizing individuals, organizations, and projects for exemplifying the very best in architecture. The AIA believes that awards programs should be carefully structured so that selection and recognition of honorees serve two distinct purposes: one directed to the profession, and the other, to the public. By focusing attention on activity within the profession, the general quality of architectural practice is elevated. By informing the public on the breadth and value of architectural practice, the entire profession is held in higher esteem. AIASC achieves this purpose by establishing and sponsoring the following awards:

I. Design Awards – Professional
- New Construction Award
- Robert Mills Residential Award
- Adaptive Reuse/Preservation Award
- Interior Architecture Award
- Unbuilt Project Award

II. Design Awards – Student
- Student Award

III. Chapter Awards – Members
- Associate Award
- Firm Award
- Medal of Distinction
- Social Justice Award

IV. Chapter Awards – Nonmembers
- Patron Award
- Community Collaboration Award

See the "Categories" tab on the website for descriptions of each of the Design Awards and the Chapter Awards subcategories.

Framework for Design Excellence
In response to AIA's commitment to climate action, AIA South Carolina has incorporated sustainability measures from the AIA COTE Top 10 Toolkit – now the Framework for Design Excellence – into the judging criteria for professional design awards. Though voluntary, firms are encouraged to provide information for 6 of the 10 measures included in the Framework:

1. Designing for Integration
2. Designing for Energy
3. Designing for Equitable Communities
4. Designing for Water
5. Designing for Resources
6. Designing for Change

On the submission form, you will see open-ended prompts to briefly describe how your design achieves outcomes for these measures. We encourage you to address any measures that are relevant to your project. The goal of including the Framework of Excellence is to promote the sustainable design work of our members and to support AIA's Resolution for Urgent and Sustained Climate Action.

Click on the "Instructions" tab on the website for more information.

AWARDS CATEGORIES

A. DESIGN AWARDS CATEGORIES

DESIGN AWARDS

AIA South Carolina has a long-standing tradition of recognizing a broad range of architecture activity that exemplifies the values of South Carolina architects and improves the quality of the built environment in the communities we serve. The annual award program seeks to highlight the diverse range of project types that exist within the state. The AIA believes that awards programs should be carefully structured so that the selection and recognition of honorees elevates the general quality of architectural practice, establishes a standard of excellence against which all architects can measure performance, and informs the public of the importance of design.

Each entry will be judged for the success of the solution to the problems presented by the project and its worthiness, as determined by the jury, for an award of excellence in architecture. Awards will be classified into five categories for publicity and organization purposes. Jury retains the right to reclassify projects. The categories will be New Construction, Robert Mills Residential Award, Adaptive Reuse/Preservation, Interior Architecture, and Unbuilt Projects. Firms can enter a project in more than one category but must pay the associated fees for each entry. Jury retains the right to reclassify projects. Information on each category is provided below. Additional citations or project recognition may be awarded at the discretion of the jury. The written project description should provide basic information about the project and verbally convey the design concept to the jury. Information requested in the awards subcategory descriptions should be addressed clearly. Project descriptions should not provide information which discloses or identifies project team members.

Projects, excluding Unbuilt or Student entries, may be executed anywhere in the United States or abroad and must have been substantially completed after January 1, 2017.

New Construction
Projects submitted in this category will include a broad range of types such as Commercial, Educational, Multifamily, Housing, Institutional, or Faith-based Architecture. Master Planning and Urban Design projects are also eligible for recognition under this category. Renovations and addition projects are eligible, but project scope must be clearly and accurately presented through graphics and written descriptions. Projects eligible for an Adaptive Reuse/Historic Preservation Award are not eligible for this category.

Robert Mills Residential Design Awards
Projects submitted in this category will include single family residential projects or multi-family projects of no more than (4) units. Larger multi-family projects will be categorized under New Construction or Adaptive Reuse. Renovation and addition projects are eligible, but project scope must be clearly and accurately presented through graphics and written descriptions.

Adaptive Reuse / Historic Preservation
Projects submitted in this category may be of any project type (Commercial, Educational, Residential, etc.) but should include either a renovation within an existing building or a new construction that expands an existing structure or site. Projects that have been recognized for historical value through inclusion in Historic Districts or listing on Historic Registers should identify the type and reason for recognition in the written project description. Projects that do not have official recognition or designation are also eligible and should outline the historical significance in the project description. The intent of this award is to recognize thoughtful interventions or restorations that create a synergy between old and new construction. Routine maintenance, such as painting or reroofing, is not considered restoration work for the purposes of this award. Projects eligible for a New Construction award are not eligible for this category.

Interior Architecture
Projects submitted in this category should illustrate outstanding building interiors created by architects. These projects may include new construction or renovations of existing construction. Multiple entries may be submitted, but individual rooms or spaces within the same project shall be considered as one project.

Unbuilt Project
Projects submitted in this category may be unbuilt architectural designs of any project type or conceptual design studies that investigate a specific topic or project type for research purposes. Unbuilt client-sponsored projects (commercial or residential buildings, interiors, transportation, infrastructure, monuments, etc.) are eligible for recognition. Projects under construction or otherwise apparently assured of construction are not eligible. Project descriptions for Unbuilt Projects shall include a brief statement on the purpose of the project (competition, unrealized project for a client, theoretical investigation, etc.), and for client-sponsored projects include information describing why the project will remain unbuilt (lack of funding, change of design direction, etc.). All client-sponsored projects must submit a release from the owner. Projects cannot have been undertaken for academic credit or as a non-commissioned design competition entry.

STUDENT DESIGN AWARD

Projects submitted in the Student Design Award category should be the work of students currently enrolled in architecture degree program, or those who have graduated after January 1st, 2021. Projects must have been completed in pursuit of a degree or academic credit. Entrants must be sponsored by a professor at their university. Group projects are eligible for recognition and will be considered as a group submission. All group members should be credited with roles clearly identified on the submission form.

B. CHAPTER AWARDS CATEGORIES

MEMBER RECOGNITION AWARDS (Chapter Awards – Member)

AIA South Carolina has a long-standing tradition of recognizing individuals, organizations, and projects for exemplifying the very best in architecture. The AIA believes that awards programs should be carefully structured so that selection and recognition of honorees serve two distinct purposes: one directed to the profession, and the other to the public. By focusing attention on activity within the profession, the general quality of architectural practice is elevated. By informing the public on the breadth and value of architectural practice, the entire profession is held in higher esteem. AIASC achieves this purpose by establishing and sponsoring the following chapter awards. All chapter awards are conferred by the AIASC Board of Directors.

Associate Award

Nominees for the Associate Award must be sponsored by an AIASC member in good standing. Award may be given to an Associate AIASC member in good standing recognized as having demonstrated exceptional leadership and made significant contributions to the profession early in their career, or, having made a major accomplishment in the Architect Experience Program and distinguished himself/herself professionally by not just meeting the requirements of the program but surpassing them. The award may be based on professional, technical, and personal accomplishments.

Medal of Distinction

The Medal of Distinction is the highest honor that AIA South Carolina can bestow upon an AIASC member. The AIA South Carolina Board of Directors confers it in recognition of a significant body of work and/or service that has made a lasting influence on the practice of architecture in South Carolina. Any member is eligible, living or deceased. An AIASC member in good standing must make nominations to the Board. These individuals and or entities should have consistently demonstrated the spirit of strategic cooperation through their teamwork and partnership in the design and building process.

Firm Award

The Firm Award is the highest honor that AIASC can bestow upon a South Carolina architectural firm. The AIA South Carolina Board of Directors confers it in recognition of a significant body of work and/or service that has made a lasting influence on the practice of architecture in South Carolina. Any firms with principals who are members of AIASC are eligible. An AIASC member in good standing must make nominations to the Board. The Board will consider firms, regardless of size, which are deserving of recognition for design excellence, contribution to the profession of architecture, and continuity of service to the public.

Social Justice Award (Member & Non-Member)

Nominees for the Social Justice Award must be sponsored by an AIASC member in good standing. Award may be given to an AIA member or community group, organization, or public entity that has demonstrated the power of a participatory design process to eliminate inequities in the built environment. This award may be given to an individual or group for distinguished work embodying social responsibility to actively address relevant issues. Recipients may be recognized for work addressing equity, diversity, inclusiveness, universal access, affordable housing, or a variety of other social issues. Nominees for this award will be reviewed by the AIASC Equity in Architecture Committee, which will make a recommendation to the AIASC Board of Directors for conferment.

COMMUNITY RECOGNITION AWARDS (Chapter Awards – Non-Member)

Throughout its history, AIA South Carolina has recognized individuals and organizations outside the field of architecture for service to society and a commitment to elevating public awareness and demand for design excellence in the community. In 2018, AIASC introduced two new awards to honor those non-architects who exemplify these traits.

Patron Award
Bestowed upon elected officials, public administrators, or community leaders who contribute to the development of laws, regulations, or policies that affect architecture, or the public's perception of architecture, as an important part of our environment, lifestyle, and heritage. Included is advocacy for design excellence in such policies and work to nurture the evolution of public perception and appreciation for design quality.

Community Collaboration Award
Bestowed upon programs, institutions, or individuals who advance the public understanding and appreciation of design in the built environment, or for a project exhibiting exceptional engagement of the community in the design process. The Community Collaboration Award will recognize the important role of the public, the communities and neighborhoods within which we practice, in the development of projects and their ultimate success. Engagement of communities in the design process brings value to the work of AIASC members.

2. Designing for Energy: In no more than 500 words, describe any energy challenges associated with the building type, intensity of use, or hours of operation, and how the design responds to these challenges. Describe energy-efficient design intent, including passive design strategies and active systems and technologies. How are these strategies evident in the design, not just the systems?
3. Designing for Equitable Communities: In no more than 500 words, describe how community members – inside and outside the building – benefit from the project, including any/all of the following:
   - walkability/human scale/alternative transportation
   - community engagement and buy-in

6. Designing for Change: In no more than 500 words, describe how the project design anticipates adapting to new uses, adapts to climate change, and supports resilient recovery from disasters.

Detailed Instructions for the Jury Presentation File:

Project images must be submitted in a single PDF file, not to exceed 15 MB and a maximum of 12 pages.

It is your responsibility to make sure the architect's name and/or firm name is not revealed on any of the file names, images, plans, or narratives – failure to follow this requirement will automatically disqualify the entry.

When possible, images should include the building in use and the following in any order to best tell the jury your project's story:

- preservation/restoration projects – only (if applicable) may add an additional two pages (not to exceed 14 pages total for this upload) to provide the jury with sufficient information to differentiate between the original architects' work and the newly altered, preserved, or restored work
- one image showing each exposed side of the building or environment
- one additional image showing the context of each exposed side of the building (may be omitted if the project's relationship to its context is defined clearly in other prints)
- for a group of buildings, one image of the project is sufficient to illustrate the complete project, including its relationship to its environs
- for projects involving exterior alterations, one image of each altered, exposed side together with one image of the same side before alteration (unless evidence is submitted on the unavailability of the latter)
- at least one interior image for each major functional space
- conceptual diagrams, elevations, floor plans, sections, and site plan (including North arrow)

Please note: images submitted should accurately reflect built conditions. Images that have been digitally or otherwise altered to obscure or misrepresent built project conditions will be disqualified.

Additional Tips
- composite pages are acceptable
- text/notes on images/drawings are allowed
- indicate the scale used on any drawings or plans
- renderings need to be labeled as such, in particular those that may represent unbuilt elements of the project
- use of the maximum page limit is strongly recommended
- use of a horizontal (landscape) format is preferred for presentation purposes; however, the consistent use of either a horizontal or portrait format is encouraged throughout the submission
- keep in mind that the jury presentation file is your chance to convey the project's intent and execution to the jury. Try not to let graphics distract from the project presentation.

Compile all the items listed above and create or log in to your OpenWater account to start a new submission. Select the appropriate Design Award category and complete all forms in this section, entering in project information and file uploads. All line items and upload boxes are required, unless otherwise noted.

After you have saved and finalized your submission, you will receive an email confirmation that we have received it along with a reminder that if you chose to pay by check we must receive your payment by August 9 in order for your entry to be considered by the AIASC Design Awards Jury.
